David Seidel put together a fantastic history of Altoona using post cards, and his own research into the founding and growth of the city. And Dave is a fellow graduate of Altoona Catholic High, class of 1956.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. recommend it to my friend.By Phoenixjust fine. Love this product! It's a gem! I never realized cutting veggies could be so easy. Disclaimer I've never had nice knives before so I'm not sure what I'm comparing it to. I just know I'm happy! as the price. great, and very happy. my parents need it,0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Remember the past.....By Michael HostetlerBrought back old memorys of Altoona and Lakemont Park. I was raised there and I found out things I never knew.I thought the book was excellent.....M. The Pennsylvania Railroad was incorporated in 1846 and immediately began the task of finding an all-rail route to connect Philadelphia with Pittsburgh. The Pennsylvania Railroad surveyed possible routes and arrived on a valley floor at the base of the Allegheny Mountains in 1849 that was primarily occupied by the David Robeson farm. As people arrived for employment opportunities, the railroad company purchased the Robeson farm, laid out the plan of a town, and named it Altoona. Shops were established, and crafts were needed as locomotive and car design and building evolved, all with increasing population and prosperity. Altoona grew from farmland to 75,000 people in 75 years.
